

HOME & BELONGING

Our First Home

A fictional sample spread

Their first home had a table that folded against the wall. The tenancy agreement established the address and month; neither partner could date the first meal. They remembered taking turns to cook because two people could not pass in the narrow kitchen. The story stays with the year of learning to live there, rather than treating the move itself as the whole memory. No photograph was needed to describe where they always put the keys.

Evidence note

The letter, photograph, program or other record mentioned here is simulated. Memories are invented to demonstrate attribution and uncertainty. No authentic customer material or identifiable person's image is used.

From your memory to a finished edition

The editorial focus

One first shared home, its rooms, routines and early discoveries; distinct from a move-day edition.

Questions that shape the story

1. Draw a verbal map of the rooms.
2. What did you borrow, make or go without?
3. Which routine made it feel like yours?
4. What would a visitor have missed?

Layout and source treatment

The finished PDF uses a title and dedication, readable narrative pages, a selected chronology, optional captioned customer photographs, and separate source and uncertainty notes. This two-page sample shows the design and voice; it is not a complete purchased edition. A no-image layout is always available.
