

SHARED EXPERIENCES

The Memories We Made Together

A fictional sample spread

The five friends chose a missed bus as their opening scene. It mattered because of the walk that followed, not because anyone could prove the bus timetable. They contributed separate notes, and the edition kept the differing accounts of who suggested the shortcut. Later scenes showed the same habit of making room for one another. Shared authorship did not require a single agreed voice; it required permission, attribution and a clear limit to what could be known.

Evidence note

The letter, photograph, program or other record mentioned here is simulated. Memories are invented to demonstrate attribution and uncertainty. No authentic customer material or identifiable person's image is used.

From your memory to a finished edition

The editorial focus

Up to five memories linked by one relationship or group, with each voice attributed.

Questions that shape the story

1. Who is included in this shared record?
2. Which five scenes belong together?
3. What does each contributor remember differently?
4. Which words and photographs may be used privately?

Layout and source treatment

The finished PDF uses a title and dedication, readable narrative pages, a selected chronology, optional captioned customer photographs, and separate source and uncertainty notes. This two-page sample shows the design and voice; it is not a complete purchased edition. A no-image layout is always available.
